An Evening Echo.
Purpose is the edge and point of character; it is the superscription on the letter of talent.—VAIRRO.

Colonel W. Seymour Edwards swears that Colonel John T. McGraw, himself and others employed a detective last summer in connection with charges against Senators Chilton and Watson. Col. McGraw doubtless never thought that Edwards would give the thing away.

So far as can be learned no proof has been furnished that the coal operators of the Paint creek and the Cabin creek coal mining districts have failed to live up to the agreement of strike settlement offered by Governor Hatfield and accepted by operators and miners. Until such proof comes, a mere declaration amounts to nothing. Such proof would justify the present striking miners in the eyes of the public.

As the United States Senate committee probing West Virginia coal mining conditions is now in session at Washington, the public may expect Senator Martine of New Jersey to blow up time and again, conditioned, of course on the proximity of the meeting place of the committee to a saloon. The more the senator drinks, the more blustering he becomes in performing his official duties, and it may be added that he becomes less fit, if that be possible.

Those business men at Grafton who are trying to revive the Grafton Daily Republican will doubtless ascertain that it takes much money to run a newspaper. The Sentinel seems to be meeting all the needs of the city. It has a good patronage but the Telegram doubts whether it is reaping much above its outlay. It is better to encourage one good newspaper and help it to grow rather than divide support and have two poor ones, especially if they both are in the same field—morning or evening.

The Wheeling city council is deadlocked on the question of granting a license to the turt exchange there, which granting carries with it the granting of liquor licenses owing to a peculiarity of the city code there. Unless the matter is adjusted at a special council meeting called by the mayor to be held this evening, Wheeling will be without liquor licenses tomorrow, the first day of the new license year, and thereafter until the matter is settled in favor of saloon and other licenses. It is scarcely to be believed that "boozy" Wheeling will get on the water wagon so long as there is opportunity to remain "boozy."

Public Duty and Edwards.
Col. W. Seymour Edwards on the witness stand at Webster Springs, where a state solon is being tried on a charge of having solicited and accepted a bribe in the United States senatorial contest swore that he directed Frank Smith, the treasurer of his oil company, to give Presenting Attorney Townsend all the money he asked for, and Edwards added that the reason he did this was to enable the prosecutor to disprove graft and fraud that had grown to be prevalent at Charleston. It is especially strange that the prosecutor directed all of his energies to the senatorial matter alone, if what Edwards implied about legislative conditions were true. If the same Edwards would give the legislature a clean bill of health outside of the senatorial matter, the one thing that really interested him owing to the fact that he sought to have the legislature elect him. Edwards also says he deemed it a public duty to use money as he did in getting legislators into trouble in the senatorial matter. Edwards also regards his public duty done when those co-operating with him to make men who had no notion of doing so, accomplished that. Thus, public duty with Edwards applies only to Edwards's own personal cause.

Civil Courts to Act.
Those who were detained by the governor in the labor troubles in the mining regions in the southern part of the state should count themselves fortunate thus far.

While it is true that under the military commission's findings a few men were sent to the penitentiary, it was not very long until Governor Hatfield never did approve of the findings of the commission and men were detained by him only a short while. Even "Mother" Jones had comfortable surroundings and was not thrown behind jail bars.

However, under bad advice given by Socialists men known to have been guilty of murder and arson, to say nothing of insurrection, heartily approved the adoption of the Kern resolution and encouraged its passage by the United States Senate all they could urge it. The main motive was to show that constitutional power had been exceeded. They forgot that what that contention to be maintained, it would merely open wider the doors of the civil courts for their punishment.

There is good reason to believe that the civil courts will step in any way and punish them for their violations. State authorities have abundant evidence to convict several men of murder, arson and other crimes and when the civil courts ask for this information it will have to be given.

There is said to be in shape ready to turn over to the grand jury at any time information as to the plotters and the persons who went into the hills to do the shooting. The crowd of armed men who went from Crown Hill to Holly Grove on the night the "Bull Moose" train, with Sheriff Bonner Hill aboard and dealt out destruction following an attack by miners is known. Those in the armored train incident are known as well as those who gathered at Hansford and sent out calls to the adjoining mining camps calling for men to come and help "clean up the creek." It is known who went to the mines in the union district on the north side of the Kanawha river and told the miners there to take their guns and go over and help the strikers.

Evidence is at hand of the gathering of strikers and their sympathizers at Beech Grove on Sunday night and the plans made to go to Burnsville, on Paint creek, begin there and take Paint creek by force to its mouth. There is positive information as to who the leaders were, where the ammunition came from, who brought it and distributed it. It can be shown who led the crowd of ninety-three armed men up the hill the next morning, Monday, February 10, and many names of men who were in the crowd are known. The information includes the story of the shooting of that crowd of armed miners with mine guards near Wacom where Fred Bobbitt and James Vance were killed in the battle which ensued, resulting in the third proclamation of martial law.

Not only is there all this information but also of who led the fights in and around Mucklow May 29, June 5 and July 25, 1912. The names of five men who went out from Mucklow on February 8, following the armored train incident, and fired many shots into the miners' camp at Holly Grove are known. The played in all this guerrilla warfare by persons prominent in the miners' organization and by leading Socialists and Socialist publications is well known. All this and much more has been signed, sealed and sworn to.

If, as is claimed, the military prisoners were illegally arrested and imprisoned, they are liable under the civil law to indictment for any violation of which they may be guilty. If their trials before the military commission were legal, then they can not be tried again. Counsel for the miners are doing their best to have the military tribunal tabooed. If they succeed, if their clients are certain to have some serious charges to face in the civil courts. And in case of conviction executive clemency will not be spread with such a generous hand.

The United States has ten rivers more than 1,000 miles long.

As Recorded in the Files of the Daily Telegram

Owen Kraft, former owner of the Camden hotel at Weston, paid W. F. Rau $15,000 for a half interest in the Glen Elk hotel and became an active partner there.

Frank R. Moore returned from a trip to Europe. He was gone six weeks.

Emma Agner swore out a warrant in Justice M. S. Riley's court charging Charles McVicker with assaulting her, when he attempted to choke her with a clothes line.

Miss Hattie Chorpensing, a clerk in the Watts-Lamberg store, was a typhoid fever patient in the Harrison county hospital.

A marriage license was issued to Dexter G. Powell, of Salem, and Miss Minnie M. Lyon, of this city.

Announcement was made of the marriage of M. D. Post, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Post, of this county, and Mrs. Bloomfield Schoolfield, of Virginia, in Philadelphia at noon the day before with the immediate families present.

The smallpox quarantine at the Kern home on East Pike street was lifted. Kern and his wife had both died and a sister of the latter had lost her mind, leaving no occupants there.

Samuel Mills, a Virginian who came to this county in early life and resided many years on the Mines farm at Adamston with his wife and two brothers, died at Reynoldsville as the result of dropsy. He was advanced in years.

Jesse H. Carr purchased the business and plant of the West Virginia Transfer Company of Fred G. Viger and others and took possession.

The Rev. George W. Pollock, of Buckhannon, president of the state Christian Endeavor union, passed through the city on the way to attend a district convention at St. Marys.

Slams McLuke.
The Parkersburg State Journal very properly disclaims credit for leading the Fairmont West Virginian into the Luke McLuke habit. The pseudo Mr. McLuke is a slanderer of women and an enemy of good English. His philosophy is humor, but not always humorous.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

A Beauty Booster.
Nothing adds more to the attractiveness of a town, or makes a better impression on visiting strangers, than newly painted residences, neat fences, good sidewalks, clean streets and alleys, and withal a goodly number of shade trees and ornamental shrubbery and flowers in your yards. It is indicative of refinement, culture, good taste and thrift.—Gassaway Times.

Prejudged.
No matter what the outcome of the senatorial investigation of the Cabin-Paint creek conditions, one fact has been clearly demonstrated and that is that Senator Martine is a very prejudiced committee man. We had always thought that a judge should be absolutely fair, unbiased and impartial in the hearings accorded all the parties to the controversy, but if we are to credit the published reports of this New Jersey senator with the attorneys for the coal operators and his bitter sarcastic remarks, we would have to conclude that Senator Martine has prejudged the matter already, and would not be in a fit frame of mind to make an impartial report of the conditions inquired into.—Nicholas Republican.

The Salem Terminal Traction Company, of which J. E. Law was vice-president, was surveying a route into the city.

Ernest W. Smith, stenographer in the county clerk's office, was preparing to go to Richmond, Va., to take a navy position there.

Bonds for new school buildings were voted down by a small majority the day before as shown by results announced by the school board.

Willie J. Deison, aged 14 years, was suffering from a broken leg, received the night before when seats at a cheap show at Jackson park fell.

He Advertises That He Doesn't Advertise

A manufacturer of a nationally distributed product encloses in each package that leaves his factory a printed slip bearing the following:

Our competitors spend $8,000,000 annually to advertise their products. We put quality into ours. Instead, thus giving our patrons the benefit of the money we save by not advertising.

The remarkable part about the above is the fact that here's a firm that ADVERTISES THAT IT DOES NOT ADVERTISE!

If this manufacturer is sincere he will wake up some day and tell the public about the excellence of his own product in some legitimate "reason why" advertising. Then, if his goods are all he says they are he will do a lot more business and make more real money than ever he dreamed of before.

For an honest product daily newspaper advertising is the cheapest, ablest salesman ever employed, and most advertising is a pretty good guarantee of quality. The Daily Telegram.
